BREAK EVEN IN

Lucia which warmed things up, The Sexton, who went strong all through the engagement, scratched to Morrissey, and Morrissey heaved one at Bigble that couldn't be seen for the dust it kicked up at the first bag. Then Hoffman slammed an easy one at Morrissey, and before the crowd knew what had happened Morrissey had made another weird heave to second base that made Sexton safe again. Lucia, in the meantime, had been nailed to the mast by a throw from Cowan to Shaw, leaving third base free. Before the sack had got cool, however, Sexton was on it. Then D. Smith clouted a long fly to Burke, and 7 to 3, by bunching hits for a total Sexton was at nome before it could be returned.

Sexton was at nome before it could be returned.

Hoped in the Seventh.

In the seventh inning, and the irony of the thing was that the Richmond fans were loudly calling for Dame Fortune to make it the lucky seventh, Arty Smith started something by sending a hot liner to left field. He was sacrificed to second, and raced home when Heller smacked another, to the grass behind Baker and Shaw. That closed the run-getting, and there was really little more to the game.

Shaw and Morrissey pulled off two errors each in the first inning. Pfeister, who replaced Brown, held the visitors safe until the ninth, when Zimmerman's error behind Richie, yielded two more tallies. Twenty thousand fans witnessed the contest. The score:

Buying Nothing But the Best

The reason that old "Virginia Corn" Whiskey, made and bottled in the distillery of the Richmond Distilling Company, is in demand everywhere is because the proprietors buy nothing but the best corn grown in the State. Unusual care is taken in distilling and storing the whiskey to age. But up in convenient size packto age. Put up in convenient size packages and shipped everywhere.

Some Baseball Talk

By HALF NELSON.

In view of the kicks and protests registered against the Virginia League umpires, it would seem almost proper to discard the whole pack, except Pender, and take a new deal. Davis has been protested against, Mace had been the subject matter for wild kicks, and Westervelt was the recipient of much attention yesterday afternoon when he made a decision that the Richmond fans didn't like. It is most probable that on that account he will be the subject matter for the next protest in the last time Portsmouth was here. subject matter for the next protest to Jake Wells.

The Richmond outfield played a real game. All three of the members of that department of the game made the grandstand sit up and take notice at some time during each game, and several of their performances were really great, especially that catch of Wallace's, in the second inning, of Levy's fly. It was one of the prettiest efforts ever seen here.

The new bat boy the Colts have acquired is something of a classic in his class. With a biue uniform that fits his scant figure to the bone, he presents a really mascotish appearance as he hides behind the bat he is taking to the dog-house. The other bat boy got a real job in the soda water department of the park, and had to give up glory for coin. The new one, however, can hold the job to the queen's taste if he comes up to his lucky appearance.

Washington, July 9.—Washington and St. Louis split even on to-day's double header, the visitors winning to the first game, 9 to 6, while the locals captured the second, 3 to 2. Morrissey has no one to blame but Morrissey for that first game. Two of his errors put Sexton where he could score, and then the fly came that put him over. The second run was plain hits.

Even then, Morrissey came very near to winning his game, when, with two men on bases, he drove a line ball where it seemed good for a safety. Howdell happened, however, to be just where he could stop the ball, and by a lucky one-hand stab he corralled it, and the side was retired.

Two Thousand Fans Witness Closing Game of Series.

Scries.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch]
Petersburg, Va., July 9.—Danville took the last of the series from Petersburg this evening, and two thousand fams present, who had yelled themselves hoarse in their efforts to make the home team win, left the ball field satisfied that they had witnessed a good, clean, snappy game of ball. The first four innings of the game resulted in neither team getting a batsman further than secon base. In the fifth Laughlin was given a base on balls, stole second, and went to third on Priest's sacrifice, and came home on Rickard's bunt. Petersburg took the lead in the sixth, when Welsher singled, took second on a steal, and was sacrificed to third by Boos. McFarland was given a base on balls, went to second and both scored on Bowen's double to left field.

In the eighth inning Danville scored three runs on singles by Sullivan, Schrader and Gaston, a sacrifice by Hooker, and a fielder's choice, and this lead Petersburg was unable to overcome although they made a gallant rally in the ninth, having two men on bases when Clunk was thrown out at the home plate by Geston, who handled Kunkle's grounder in fine style.

Priest's double play, unassisted, in the seventh inning, and his base stealing, Booe's throw from deep right field to the home plate, in the fourth, nalling Sullivan at the plate and Hooker's sacrifice his, were the feature of the game.
